

Remote Escorts

Feel safe at any hour

Get a personal escort any time you need one without a round-the-clock security officer presence. Remote escorts from Securitas are a smart way to prevent incidents and give your employees peace of mind in any potentially risky situation.

Whether you're at the office late to meet deadlines or an early bird who shows up before the sun does, a remote escort gives you secure coverage when you are entering or exiting your property. That can be a particular comfort when you have to cross a deserted parking lot or garage. When a Securitas operator gets the request, they scan the premises around an entrance to make sure there is no suspicious activity before giving the all-clear.

To be extra certain no one tries anything, they can also announce over a loudspeaker that the premises are being monitored by Securitas in real-time. If an incident seems about to happen, they can use the loudspeaker to ward off trouble by announcing the police are on their way.
